

UniWells project consortium cordially invites you to

SYMPOSIUM

Welcoming universities: Towards high-quality support for international academics
in Central-Eastern and South-Eastern Europe held under the auspices of the Slovak V4 Presidency

21 June 2023

Bratislava, Slovakia

Background

The attractiveness of higher education institutions to global talent depends on their ability to provide quality assistance to international students and staff throughout their stay. Offering a supportive and stimulating environment to international academics based on a welcome culture is key not only for their professional and personal growth and willingness to stay, but also for their contribution to the university's goals in teaching, research and service to society.

Assistance to international academics at various mobility stages is a complex mission which involves a broad range of general and more specialised issues and requires a close collaboration between different actors. This final UniWells conference will present the key lessons learnt from this three-year project in terms of building comprehensive approaches to quality support services for international PhD students and academics in Central-Eastern and South-Eastern Europe.

It will provide an opportunity to share good practice and benefit from the multiple resources developed by the UniWells partners to support professional development of staff involved in the attraction and support of international PhD students and researchers.
